

Ph.D. positions in Linguistics

The University of Verona and the Free University of Bozen-Bolzano have currently opened 6 positions within their joint Ph.D. programme in Linguistics. Selected Ph.D. candidates will receive a 3-year fellowship.

The successful applicants are committed to conducting independent and original scientific research and participating in local, national and international training activities to develop their potential. Given the multilingual environment of the programme, we encourage the application of international students with a good command of English and at least one second language (Italian or German).

Applications can be uploaded starting 9th May 2022. The deadline for online applications is 8th June 2022. Only online applications through the university application system are accepted (please do not send applications via e-mail). Information about candidacy can be found on the application website: <https://www.dlls.univr.it/?ent=iscrizionecs&cs=1007>

The selection procedure involves evaluation of the candidates' Master's theses, their research project as well as an online interview. For details see the application website.

One of the fellowships is reserved for a Ph.D. project dedicated to the realization of a project in the context of the cooperation with the University of Marburg. For details see <https://www.dlls.univr.it/?ent=avvisoin&cs=1007&id=162607&lang=en>.

Candidates interested in this fellowship have to indicate their preference in the application form.

A second fellowship is reserved for a Ph.D. project dedicated to a project in the field of multilingualism and language policies in Ukraine. For details see <https://www.dlls.univr.it/?ent=avvisoin&cs=1007&id=163334&lang=en>.

Candidates interested in this fellowship have to indicate their preference in the application form.
